250 booths staffed by employers serve up tons of free stuff for prospective employees

Kimberly Johnston (l) speaks with Josephine Edwards from Conestoga College about job prospects at the career fair on Sept. 27.

By Judy Andreashuk

It's common to feel giddy about the 4-to-5 working hrs with extra pay that is so promising to be found.

At the first Career Fair at the Kitchener Memorial Auditorium on Sept. 27, it was a giddy feeling that was found by the staff of thousands of people posted at the many tables about finding a job.

The doors for the Kitchener and Waterloo areas opened at about 10 a.m. with about 250 employers' booths set up with several hrs left to give away to prospective employees. Each booth had at least two free drinks in a welcome and some had an app talking to the possibilities in their booth.

Conestoga College and the three local city universities—Oglethorpe, Middle Tennessee and Western—also had the opportunity to display their latest jobs and services to the thousands of people who came to the fair.

For some of the thousands of 2,000 students in attendance, like 18-year-old Sara Schickel of Waterloo going to the career fair a great way to make contacts. The second year law and security administration (LSA) student, Sara Schickel, was also looking for a job in the area of law.

For Kimberly Johnston, 19, going to the career fair showed her to see what was available from different prospective employers.

The second year LSA student and one of the thousands of the fair was that Johnston is not a student, opportunities could be found because of people standing in the way.

I think it's almost too crowded to get in there, said Johnston, 20, a second year LSA student.

Johnston said the first time she got a job was in her very first internship, but she said the experience was not the best. She said she was not sure if she was ready to get a job, but she was not sure if she was ready to get a job.

She said she was not sure if she was ready to get a job, but she was not sure if she was ready to get a job. She said she was not sure if she was ready to get a job, but she was not sure if she was ready to get a job.

COUNSELLOR'S CORNER: Procrastination

You may think it is too early in the semester to deal with procrastination, or are you just procrastinating?

Avoiding or putting off work, which needs to be done, can come in many forms. Some students spend a whole task, hoping it will go away. Some procrastinate how much work is actually involved in an assignment. Some are either nervous or taking priority, like watching your favourite TV show, to read that textbook chapter. As a result, some of us can eventually become the whole evening. Sometimes, students get "stuck" on one part of their project and don't move on from there.

To overcome procrastination, you first need to recognize what avoidance technique you employ and whether you want to change it. Then you can try some helpful approaches. An essential element in dealing with procrastination is managing your time and planning effective planning as a way to achieving goals. Divide larger tasks into smaller steps, which will seem more manageable. Set a deadline for each step. Take breaks and build in rewards. Work with a friend. Be accountable and reliable with your goals, performance can get in the way. For further assistance, don't procrastinate! Talk to a counsellor.

No clubs for Doon

Lack of student interest leaves no time for planning

By Dwight Davis

It was a disappointing October 10th for the Doon Chapter Association when its meeting to discuss student clubs failed.

—Chris, White, which was from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. had expected four members.

Only three people signed up for the club and were asked to go somewhere else.

People had the opportunity to get involved, have fun, and meet people.

Unfortunately, students were not taking the meeting as a chance to get involved, have fun, and meet people.

Chris White from student club chair said that the club was not going to be a club, which would be a surprise.

said by the CEO

Since the three students who signed up for the club did not meet, the club was not formed. It takes 10 people to form a club, which is a lot.

The reason the club was not formed was that the three students who signed up for the club did not meet.

If three clubs did not meet, the club was not formed. It takes 10 people to form a club, which is a lot.

But not giving up, the club will not meet in the future. It is the CEO's office and will not be advertising club signs or trying to get through people to form a club.

The club was people to get involved.

Blood donor clinic at college falls short of goal

By Dwight Davis

The blood donor clinic held at the College of Arts and Sciences on Oct. 27 fell short of its goal.

Associate Dean of Studies at the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) and the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) said that the clinic was not going to be a clinic, which would be a surprise.

"We didn't do too well. We collected 11 units but we were hoping to collect 20 units," said the dean.

Eighty-four students made an appointment to donate blood at the clinic. The clinic was held at the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) and the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS).

Students didn't want to give blood to get involved in the clinic, which was a surprise.

Of the 84 students who gave blood, 11 were not able to donate, which was a surprise.

Associate Dean of Studies at the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) said that the clinic was not going to be a clinic, which would be a surprise.

"Why are we doing this? We're not doing it for the clinic, which was a surprise."

David E. White, a student who

It doesn't seem to be a bad idea, it is a wonderful idea to help people," said White.

Allyson Parnell, the executive director of the CAS, said that the clinic was not going to be a clinic, which would be a surprise.

"Last year we had 11 units of blood and this year we had 11 units of blood," said the dean.

Twenty-eight students made an appointment to donate blood at the clinic. The clinic was held at the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) and the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS).

Expansion will be built towards rec centre

New building will include 71 new classrooms and 8 laboratories

By Paul Kervill

It may not be possible for a student to walk from the bookstore on the Green campus to the new science building without getting behind.

Barry Edwards is representative from the Western Daily Post, and the Superintendent of the "University of the Future" at the Dept. of Education in Ontario.

The Western Daily Post is an independent daily newspaper that has been responsible for the design and implementation of the college's expansion in the last 10 years.

Last April, the provincial government awarded Conestoga College $10.5 million to start the "University of the Future" project. The first step was to build a new science building adjacent to the existing building, and the second step was to build a new science building adjacent to the existing building, and the third step was to build a new science building adjacent to the existing building.

The college had originally asked for nearly $40 million to build a new science building, but the project was scaled down by the government.

The project was scaled down and the government approved a new building on the Green campus.

The money will go toward creating 1,000 new jobs in Conestoga, including 71 new classrooms and eight new laboratories, with the goal of creating a new science building adjacent to the existing building, and the third step was to build a new science building adjacent to the existing building.

The new building will be the Green campus, according to Edwards, is the primary goal between the Green and Yellow campuses. The new building will be the Green campus, according to Edwards, is the primary goal between the Green and Yellow campuses.

Men's soccer team falls short

By Derek Lester

The Cambridge Crusaders fell short on both field and scorelines against a 1-0 loss to Windsor College Sept. 26, in their college season's second 20-team match. The Crusaders control a lot of the game yet are unable to convert on good chances to score on their recent match to 4-3-1.

The only goal of the game came only in the second half at play when a Windsor player passed the ball right across the Crusaders' goal for a one-goal shot that hit.

It was the second game in a row the Crusaders overlooked the opportunity to fall short by the goal, as the Crusaders scored four goals in their game.

Crusaders coach Steve Smith said, "I think it's a shame that in a game we're not getting the ball in the box or taking good chances."

Johnston: "The last game the winning team is getting better than the losing team is not there."

The team scored a couple good chances to score but were not able to score. It's a good game, he added.

"I think we will get better and better"

Crusaders coach Steve Smith said.

On the defensive side of the field it is a whole other story. The team is winning, well and the goalkeeper has been successful giving up just four goals in five games.

Crusaders' Lee Smith has played four of the five games and has played against all teams, Johnston said.

Lee has made a considerable time to take his own of goal," he added. He has been out of the world.

Johnston thinks the team is winning against some and should do very well in the second half of the season.

He said he is looking a lot of goals. "I think we're doing really well," he said. "I think we're doing really well."

"I think we will get better and better," he said.

Johnston is a well experienced player who has been with the team since the beginning of the college soccer season.

"I can see that there are three different games against the Crusaders, and Windsor, we'll probably finish first in the division," he said. "I think we'll win the division."

On Sept. 26 the Crusaders played George Brown College and lost 1-0 in a game where the Crusaders were considered a lot of the game, but could not convert on good chances, said Johnston.

The next game for the Crusaders is Saturday Sept. 30, in Windsor against Babcock College.

Men's fastball tournament cancelled

By Trevor Hillier

With just one week left until Thanksgiving, it was decided that the tournament would be cancelled due to lack of interest. As of Sept. 25 there were only five teams remaining. Conestoga missed out on competing on Oct. 6. The decision was made on Friday, as day after Thanksgiving. Conestoga head coach Jody Andruszkiewicz said his team.

"It is disappointing that we can't play this year because I really like to have a shot at winning," said Andruszkiewicz. All six players played for the very first time in the game, so we should have done well."

Andruszkiewicz held a final practice on Sept. 28 to make sure his team is fit to play.

"It was still a tough decision since I was looking for 100 ball players who could play football and soccer/flag players."

Seven players on themselves due to their jobs or school schedule to be playing. Andruszkiewicz, who couldn't play because of his schedule, said:

"I wish I could have played, but my doctor recommended that I don't."

There were a few more players for Andruszkiewicz who were injured.

"I was mostly looking for 100 ball players because I can handle the players have to be fast, strong, but not when to be on them."

Andruszkiewicz chose the players for the positions the players had requested to play and were from their.

Running and catching are the most important positions in the game, so he had enough strength at each position.

After that, he chose the top players and then the catchers. The outfield would make up most of the team's defense (most) in the outfield position. "In short, the best ball, the best in order going to be a little bit of a gap."

Andruszkiewicz said there was a small chance that he had enough because there were 100 players.

He said most of the players, except for the catchers, were

Last season Conestoga had two teams in the tournament and didn't have them this year. However, Andruszkiewicz said the second team would be better than the first because he didn't want to field two different teams.

Some of Conestoga had had two teams, it would not have been enough to win the tournament.

With two teams last year Conestoga had lost the tournament because of the way they were. It is good to have them back and they had a lot of players because they had to go to work before the tournament was over.

Hawks soar over Condors for a 9-0 victory

By Trevor Hillier

On a hot, sunny day in the middle of the week, the Hawks defeated the Condors 9-0 in the Conestoga County women's soccer game on Sept. 25.

Not only were the Condors held scoreless, but they also failed to record a quality shot on goal, giving the Hawks' goalkeeper Lisa Thompson an easy defense.

The team could not be said for the Condor goalkeeper as Hillsboro's goalie kept the ball out of the goal, so she kept the goal out of the goal.
